FROM THE PRESIDENT'S PEN

April 2017

My fellow Artists,
I have long been a fan of PBS, but I'm going to put the 's' in WCART(s), when I tell you about an Extraordinary production of theirs charting the struggles and rise of the authoresses known as The Brontë Sisters, called 'To Walk Invisible'. I must confess I knew little of them, before seeing it, altho no one could escape, I think, unaware of their works, 'Jane Eyre', and 'Wuthering Heights', probably being the most famous, which has had countless adaptations on stage and screen. I can't begin to tell you how affected I was by seeing it, and I now count myself as a HUGE fan, eager to see more! If you missed it, it can be viewed on the PBS website until April 9th.

Emily, Ann, and Charlotte Brontë

Meanwhile, while we've been watching March roar in like a lion, and out like a lamb, Pam has been 'knocking it out of the park' again with our next speaker, Jeffrey M Green, colored pencil artist. A glance at his website will be enough to convince you that he is an extraordinary talent, and I for one, will be eager to hear what he has to say! Hope to see you there!!

Your Prez, Patti

On Another Note: Put April 8th 4-7pm in your calendar to go to Kathy's Kove East Art Gallery on East Washington Ave., Washington, NJ for an Artists Reception with a mix of artists including Pat Olds.

~ April 13th- Colored Pencil Workshop by Jeffrey Green ~

Artist Jeffrey M Green

Colored Pencil Demonstration

with Warren County ARTS

Drawing the human eye

April 13th
7 PM

Join the artist as he discusses colored pencil technique, shares some of his work, and touches upon challenges in his life. Learn how to draw the human eye with colored pencils. The demo will be participatory for those who wish to draw, guided step-by-step.

Oxford Township Municipal building,
11 Green Street, Oxford, NJ 07863

On April 13th, artist Jeffery M Green will be giving a colored pencil demo with WCARTS. He will begin with a short talk discussing basic technique, showing some of his pieces, and sharing challenges in his life.

Following this he will give a step-by-step demo of how to draw a realistic eye with colored pencils. Viewers are invited to draw along in a workshop experience, while others are free to watch and enjoy the demo if they do not wish to participate.

Those participating are required to bring a stiff drawing surface such as art board, Bristol board, or a smooth or lightly textured watercolor paper. Artist grade colored pencils are also required.

Prismacolor colored pencils are the mostly widely available, though you may bring other brands as long as they are artist grade conventional colored pencils. (The cheaper brands or student grade will not allow painterly rendering).

Any questions: jeffrey.michael@hotmail.com. 610-452-9132. website: <http://www.jeffreymgreenartist.com>

A photo reference will be provided as our subject. For those who are less confident in drawing in the time allotted, or wish to get right to the colored pencils, a template drawing will be provided.
